What We Are Looking For

- Passion – A student must have a desire for singing and an eagerness to learn the technical aspects of the art form. Students must be willing to adapt to a scientific and holistic (healthy vocal technique) approach to singing.
- Students must have a willingness to learn to sing classical repertoire in multiple languages.
- Our program is mainly focused on classical music with small opportunities for exploration in other genres.
- Vocal Potential – Students must have a clear ability to match pitch (good intonation and tonal memory), a good sense of rhythm and a suitable vocal range.
- Performance Potential – Students must have a willingness to explore all possibilities of the art form through expression (taking chances) and vulnerability.
- Academic/Artistic Success – As Ellington is a college preparatory school, we are looking for students who can be successful in their academic and art classes. As we are a dual curriculum program, students must understand the importance of dedicated time to both art and academic classes.
- A Cooperative Attitude – Students must be able to work well with others in and outside of class. This includes students, faculty, and staff.
- Endurance – Students must have the stamina and capacity to successfully manage the longer school day, which is 9+ hours in addition to daily homework, daily practice, and performances. One must be a dedicated student who practices regularly and strives for excellence.

Students invited for callbacks will be notified by the Admissions Office if selected. Please contact admissions@ellingtonarts.org with any questions or concerns related to attending either or both days of the callback class. Make-up days can be scheduled for extenuating circumstances. Please note that they must be completed in a consecutive two-day period.
